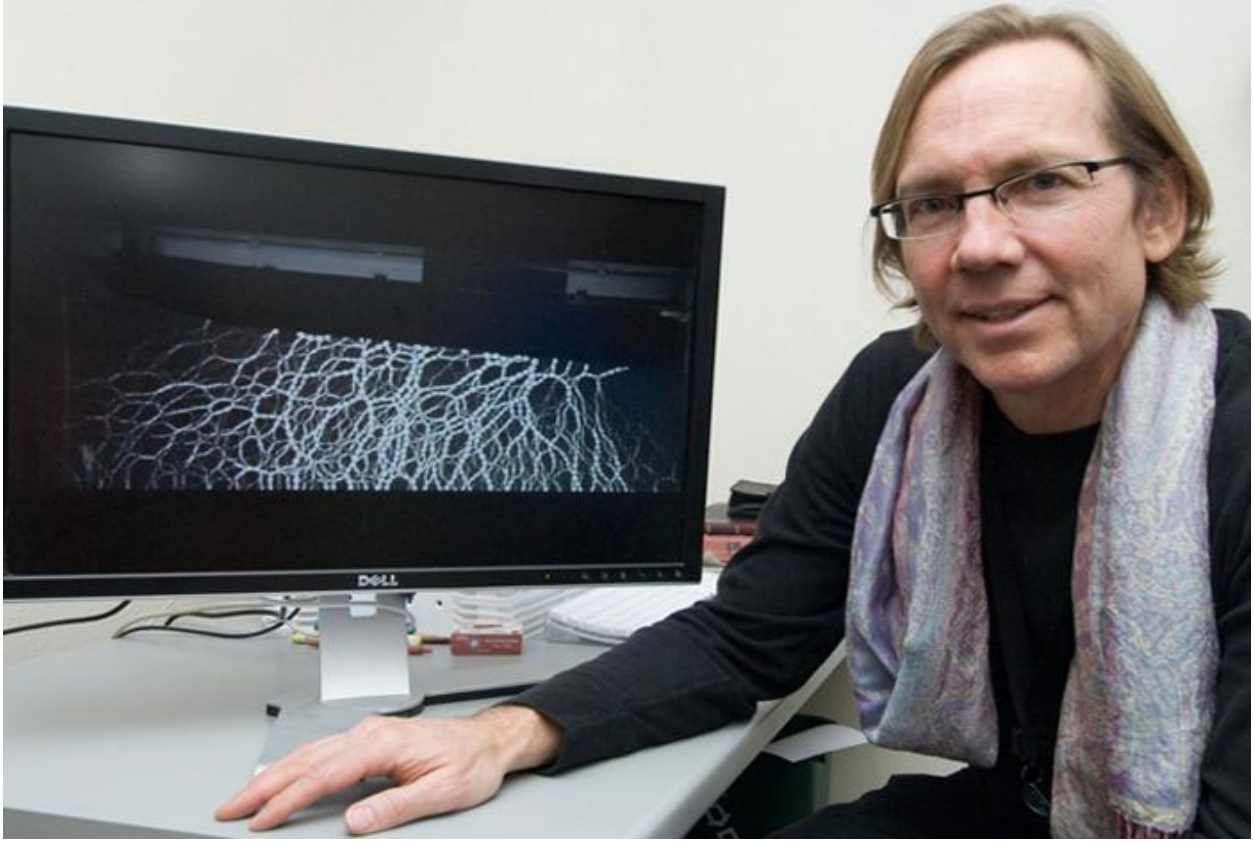
Science on the Hill: Can we someday predict earthquakes?

March 14, 2016



Can we someday predict earthquakes?

Earthquakes pose a vital yet puzzling set of research questions that have confounded scientists for decades, but new ways of looking at seismic information and innovative laboratory experiments are offering tantalizing clues to what triggers earthquakes — and when.

Read the full story at The Santa Fe New Mexican.

March 13, 2016

By Paul Johnson