

Nuclear Physics

The work on nuclear physics highlighted in this section involves collaborations among researchers in Los Alamos Neutron Science Center (LANSCE), and Applied Physics (X) and Theoretical (T) divisions. The articles describe a gamut of applied work, such as the evaluation of cross sections for detector development and other applications, to somewhat longer-range projects such as the calculation of fission barriers.